Donations and Gifts Policy

1. Introduction

The University of South Australia Library welcomes financial gifts and donations of books and other library materials. Donations are generally accepted for inclusion in the collection on the basis of support to the University's teaching, learning and research focus or addition to the Library's special or archival collections. Materials in digital (electronic) format, items not already held within the Library collection and those which otherwise fall within the scope of the Library’s Collection Development and Information Access policy are particularly welcome.

In line with the intent of the University’s Digital Strategy, the Library will not generally accept material in print if a digital version is available.

The Library encourages retiring staff to consider donating digital copies of academic items from their collections to the Library. Divisions, Schools and current academic and research staff are also encouraged to deposit a copy of their publications at the Library.

2. Guidelines for acceptance of donations

Donations accepted are those that support the teaching, learning and research scholarship focus of the University or add to the Library’s special or archival collections:

- scholarly resources
- current edition textbooks
- published resources associated with the University, its predecessors, and associated parties
- unpublished material if it adds to an existing area of strength or supports teaching and research
- material on indigenous studies, art, architecture, water policy, sustainability and South Australian education
- research degree theses and other high quality academic work accepted by the University under its Guidelines for the acceptance of theses and other works
- journal donations, including backsets, that complete existing holdings in our collections and which are not held in digital collections.

The Library is particularly interested in copies of publications of academic and research staff of the University regardless of format. One copy of staff print publications will be added to the University Publication Collection, this can be found under special collections on the Collections page of the Library website.

Donations which may not be accepted include resources which duplicate current holdings, superseded editions of textbooks, items in poor physical conditions or in obsolete formats, out of date content, incomplete sets or where the resource constitutes unpublished or archival materials not of relevance to the Library’s special collecting areas.

3. Conditions of acceptance

The Library reserves the right to accept or decline donations, and to dispose of unwanted resources in accordance with its Collection Relegation and Disposal Policy. Donated resources are only accepted on the understanding that they become the property of the Library and cannot be claimed back at a later date, with the exception of larger collections where it is specifically outlined in a Memorandum of Understanding. As a general principle, the Library will not accept conditional donations where restrictions are place on the use or accommodation of the resources. All donations must be accompanied by the Library’s Donation Form.

All resources accepted as donations are processed into the collection in the same manner as those acquired by purchase or subscription. The Library will decide on the appropriate location of the resources, and determine issues of retention and future weeding according to its Collection Development and Information Access Policy. Acceptance of substantial collections and material with implications for housing and disposition should be referred to the Deputy Director.

Unpublished materials will be digitised and made available to the public via the Research Outputs Repository in accordance with the University’s Open Access Policy.

4. Donations and tax benefits

4.1 Cultural Gifts Program
The Library is eligible to participate in the Commonwealth Government’s Cultural Gifts Program which provides tax incentives to encourage gifts of culturally significant items from private collections to Australia’s public art galleries, museums, libraries and archives. The Library welcomes enquiries about donating important collections or individual titles under this program which offers the donor a tax deduction for the market value of the donation. Due to administrative costs and valuations fees associated with this program, the Library may not accept cultural gifts donations where the market value is less than $10,000.

Please contact the Deputy Director if you wish to discuss donating to the Library under the Cultural Gifts Program.

4.2 Financial gifts
The University welcomes financial donations to the Library and these may be targeted to the purchase of resources for particular subject areas. Gifts to the University are tax deductible as the University of South Australia qualifies as a tax exempt organisation under section 78 of the Income Tax Assessment Act. For information on how to give to the Library please refer to Make a gift.

5. Acknowledgement of donations
Donations are acknowledged in writing by the Deputy Director. Materials, including ebooks, purchased from financial donations of $100 or more are acknowledged by adding a donation note in the catalogue record for the items. For smaller donations a bookplate acknowledging the donation is provided when the item is processed.
